

Sanskriti Gupta

Sanskriti did a majority of the designing of the application. She created the framework showing what the application would look like, what it would do, and what features the user could use. She also created all of the UML diagrams showcasing what the program does and how it works.

Phoenix Ye

Phoenix did a majority of the actual coding that created the application. Phoenix utilized the principles of object oriented programming to make the user interface and the elements behind the scenes that allow the application to function.
